

Youth Week 2017

CYPC had a great time at the Youth Week Festival at Harrison School on Friday 31 March 2017. Several hundred young people stopped to chat and to join in making jewellery from metal washers and nail polish! The results were fantastic, with young people taking home stunningly creative pieces.

I also invited young people to complete a survey about 'transitions'; helping me to understand the changes young people find most significant, and the sources of support they find most helpful during times of transition.

My team gave out information about the ACT Human Rights Commission, and had examples of our work on hand for young people to look through.

The many conversations with young people were a really valuable part of the Youth Week Festival. Thanks to everyone who stopped to chat! And thanks to the Youth Coalition of the ACT for organising such a great event!

If you are running an event that you would like the Commissioner to be a part of, please get in touch.
